

$130,000 CHARMER GETS 2 YEAR TERM

Unmoved as Ralph E. Lovell Tells How She Led Him to Rob Jersey Bank.

STORY OF THE FLIGHT

son to steal more than $130,000 from the First National Bank of Edgewater, how he had then fled with Mrs. Munson to South America and thence to London and how finally, convinced of her treachery, he had confessed his guilt to the London detectives who arrested him.

As he imposed a sentence of two years in the State prison on Mrs. Munson. Judge Reilstab expressed the hope that when released she would lead a different life. Mrs. Munson was attired in a rich brown silk tailored suit and wore a toque and veil, which with a boa around her neck served to emphasize the charms which had proved the downfall of Lovell.

Lovell himself was brought from the State prison in order that the court might be fully informed of the details of the conspiracy before passing sentence.

On Mrs. Munson. He testified that Mrs. Munson played on his sympathies and sensibilities in her efforts to induce him to rob the bank.

Lovell and Mrs. Munson agreed that $20,000 would be enough to steal. He first took $10,000 in bundles of twenty-dollar bills, then $10,000 more, then $5,000 and then a smaller amount of about $2,000. The culmination of Lovell's thefts was the taking of more than $100,000 in negotiable securities.

In fleeing Lovell and Mrs. Munson took passage for Panama. From there they Went to Calais and thence to Buenos Aires and finally to go to France with Mrs. Munson but it was finally decided they should separate with the understanding that upon his arrival in Europe he was to communicate with Mrs. Munson, who was to send him $1,000.

Lovell said that when arrested in London one of the first questions put to him was what had become of Mrs. Munson. He said and he thought she had accompanied him but he took it for granted she had been guilty of treachery and then decided to make a full confession.

Mrs. Munson was subsequently arrested in San Francisco.

EUGENIA KELLY WITHIN LAW.

Mother Learns She Can't Be Held for Pawling Gift Jewels.

Mrs. Helen M. Kelly was forced yesterday to give up immediate hope of enlisting the District Attorney's office in her new fight to effect a permanent separation between her daughter, Eugenia and Al Davis, the girl's Broadway companion. Mrs. Kelly must pin her Assistant District Attorney Louis Bieler in the West Side court said yesterday that the facts Mrs. Kelly laid before him on Wednesday did not justify action to restrain the girl and that Mrs. Kelly must procure evidence of a different nature.

Mrs. Kelly had complained to Mr. Bleier that Eugenia had pawned within the last few days jewelry valued at $1,000, which her mother gave her at the time of their reconciliation. She believed her daughter might be prosecuted, but Mr. Bleier told her the girl could pawn the jewelry if she wished. Mother and daughter were absent from their home, 115 East Sixth-third street, most of yesterday and both refused to see the police.

Innocent listening to an explanation of the "twilight sleep" treatment by a physician who posed as an expert was the defence made before Supreme Court Justice Philbin and a jury yesterday by Mrs. Katherine Tuttle Harris in a suit for divorce brought against her by John Harris manager of the Van Rensselaer Hotel at 15 East Eleventh street.

Mrs. Harris met her husband at a hotel where he was manager. They spent a few months, after they had been married only a few months. After that she lived for a few months at 28 West Sixty-sixth street. Witnesses for Harris told of finding her there with a man, Joseph Auerbach, one of the witnesses, said that they first perceived through a keyhole and then opened the door.

duced her to take a room with her in the West Sixty-sixth street house, and that on December 28 last she and Miss Tracey met two men at Terrace Garden. Miss Tracey insisted on taking the men home with them. Mrs. Harris was told that one of the men was Dr. Harold Jerico, twilight sleep expert at Sloan Maternity Hospital.

Mrs. Harris said that, as she drank she was surprised to find liquors in the room she shared with Miss Tracey. Miss Tracey and one of the men, she said left the room to go for candy.

"When Dr. Jerico told me about the twilight sleep I asked him to explain it," said Mrs. Harris. "I was sitting on the table beside him watching him draw a diagram showing how the brain Miss Tracey took the stand against Mrs. Harris. "She told me she knew all the up to date dances and wanted to go around to the swell cabaret restaurants where she could flirt with men," said Miss Tracey. "She drank cock-

Miss Tracey was still on the stand when the case was adjourned until to day.
